THE SECOND CALL FOR PAPERS

OdRaST

Dear colleagues,

We are pleased to invite you once again to participate in the program of the program of the International Scientific Conference "A Decade of Sustainable Development Goals (2015-2025): Reflections and Future Perspectives" which will be held in Split from September 25 to 27, 2025, marking the 10th anniversary of the Sustainable Development Goals' establishment.

Social security, prosperity, biodiversity preservation, and living environments remain the most pressing challenges in today's complex social, economic, and ecological landscape. While each of the 17 SDGs provides specific guidelines for action, meaningful progress toward sustainable lifestyles requires collaboration, interaction, and joint efforts. The conference's thematic areas include the three dimensions of sustainable development: social inclusion, economic growth, and environmental protection.

This conference serves as a platform to showcase the efforts and investments made in sustainability over the past decade. It offers an opportunity to exchange knowledge, share best practices, and highlight achievements, fostering discussions and new networking possibilities. The focus is on addressing contemporary challenges to build a better and more sustainable future for all.

This significant anniversary is an opportunity to gather academics, researchers, practitioners, institutions and faculties, local and broader community stakeholders, and experts of various profiles at the international level. We emphasize international cooperation to create a basis for intellectual exchange and accumulate contributions from different actors, disciplines, activities, and institutions that see a particular problem from various perspectives. The conference encourages an interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary approach, fostering international cooperation and networking opportunities.

1st International Scientific Conference A Decade of Sustainable Development Goals (2015-2025): Reflections and Future Perspectives will be the platform to discuss:

- Progress and achievements – Evaluating a decade of SDG implementation
- Challenges and barriers - Addressing obstacles to achieving sustainability
- Interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary perspectives - The role of science, policy, and practice in sustainable development
- Future pathways – Strategies and innovations for accelerating SDG impact.
