

THURSDAY, APRIL 10TH, 2014

SELF-AWARENESS AND SUBJECTIVITY IN CONSCIOUSNESS:

Buddhist and Contemporary Philosophical Perspectives

Please join us for a cross-cultural investigation of the nature of self-awareness and subjectivity in conscious experience. In this one day workshop three leading scholars in Buddhist philosophies of mind will put these historical traditions into dialogue with contemporary Western philosophy and recent developments in cognitive science:

Speakers:

Daniel A. Arnold (Assoc. Prof. University of Chicago)
A Buddhist perspective on the Hard Problem in Philosophy of Mind

Commentator: Mr. Nicholas Oschmann, Marquette University

Christian Coseru (Assoc. Prof. College of Charleston)
A Buddhist view of Cognitive Phenomenology

Commentator: Dr. Bronwyn Finnigan, Marquette University

Matthew MacKenzie (Assoc. Prof. Colorado State University)
Reflexivity, Subjectivity, and the Constructed Self

Commentator: Mr. Jered Janes, Marquette University

April 10, 2014

Raynor Memorial
Libraries,
Beaumier Suite A,
1355 W. Wisconsin
Ave., Milwaukee

9:30 a.m. – 3:30 p.m.
Sessions and
Lunch Break

Sponsored by:
Departments of Philosophy,
History and the Asian Studies Interdisciplinary
Program supported by the Klinger College of Arts and Sciences

For more information, contact:
bronwyn.finnigan@mu.edu
michael.wert@mu.edu

Be The Difference.