

From Monsters to Monuments: On The Ultimate Fate of the Damned

Building on the view that we can cease to be human by losing the image of God,

I explore the ultimate fate of formerly-human creatures in the afterlife.

My proposal is this: their resurrected bodies will deteriorate and, along with that, their capacity to experience pain. God then preserves them in a bodiless state as eternal monuments to the significance of the earthly travail.

DR. C.A. MCINTOSH

Meet Overview Link: <https://www.epsociety.org/2024/12/06/2931/>