

Call for Papers

Nova Generatio Philosophica

Inaugural Issue, 2027

About Us

Nova Generatio Philosophica is an annual journal dedicated to philosophy students and the construction of a cross-generational academic community. We focus on cutting-edge exploration and cross-cultural dialogue among the new generation of philosophers, aiming to create a conceptual nursery for young thinkers through diverse columns.

Eligibility

Current undergraduate, master's, and doctoral students in philosophy or related disciplines, as well as early-career scholars worldwide.

Columns and Requirements

Articuli (Articles): Original research with clear problem awareness and logical argumentation. Length: 6,000–12,000 words.

Studia in Progressu (Research Drafts): Promising research plans highlighting core questions and methodology. Length: approx. 3,000 words.

Interpretationes (Textual Interpretations): Deep readings of classic or contemporary texts emphasizing critical reconstruction. Length: 4,000–8,000 words.

Recensiones Breves (Book Reviews): Critical reviews of philosophy books published within the last three years. Length: 2,000–4,000 words.

Notae Conceptuales (Conceptual Analysis): Genealogical or analytic investigations of philosophical concepts. Length: 3,000–6,000 words.

Philosophia et Tempus (Philosophy and Our Time): Philosophical interventions responding to contemporary reality. Length: 4,000–8,000 words.

Fragmenta (Essays): Philosophical notes in a free format reflecting philosophical inquiry. Length: 1,500–3,000 words.

Language

Please note that all submissions must be in English.

Review Process

The journal adopts a double-blind peer review system. Manuscripts undergo initial screening by the Editorial Board followed by a formal peer review. We encourage cross-disciplinary review and value innovative risk-taking to break down school barriers. The review cycle for the inaugural issue is approximately 3 months.

Deadline

Submission deadline for the first issue: July 10, 2026.

Submission Guidelines

Please send your manuscript to the official dedicated email address (submit.NGP@proton.me). Ensure that all personal identification (name, institution, etc.) is removed from the manuscript body to facilitate anonymous review.

We look forward to your philosophical insights.

Editorial Board, Nova Generatio Philosophica

February 6, 2026