Syracuse University
Department of Religion
2027 Graduate Student Conference

MUNDANE RELIGION

Daily, habitual, and vertically shallow, the mundane is the world we most frequently ~~live~~ occupy. To call something mundane is a value judgement: a way to define and ignore what is uninspired and unworthy of consideration. This conference asks how some things are made distinct and others unremarkable.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER:

S.B. Rodriguez-Plate
Hamilton College

SUBMISSION DEADLINE:
January 15, 2027

Submit proposals here:

DATE: Saturday, March 27, 2027

Location: Syracuse University

Syracuse University

Mundane Religion

2027 Graduate Student Conference

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

What makes something seem boring or unremarkable? What makes it worthy of attention? How do everyday actions shape how we live, think, and understand ourselves?

Syracuse University's Department of Religion invites proposals on how some aspects of everyday life stand out while others are taken for granted, and what ordinary habits can reveal about religion.

CONFERENCE DATE	Saturday, March 27, 2027
LOCATION	Syracuse University
KEYNOTE SPEAKER	S.B. Rodriguez-Plate, Hamilton College
PROPOSAL DEADLINE	January 15, 2027

Submit a proposal

Learn more at RelCFP