

Call For Papers

6th Annual NU/ND Graduate Epistemology Conference

April 10th and 11th - 2015

Notre Dame University, South Bend, IN

Keynote Speaker: Declan Smithies (Ohio State University)

Submission Guidelines:

We welcome submissions in the field of analytic epistemology, broadly construed. Papers may be on any topic in epistemology, however, this year we especially encourage the submission of papers in sub-fields or on topics that have received less attention in mainstream epistemology in the past 60 years. Examples of such sub-fields and topics are: feminist epistemology, epistemology of race and gender, social epistemology, and so-called normative epistemology. Papers should be no more than 4000 words (approx. 13 pages), excluding notes. Papers should be prepared for blind review: include detachable cover page with paper's title, abstract, author's name, mailing address, email, phone number, school affiliation, and word count; please omit any self-identifying remarks within the body of the paper.

Deadline: Papers must be received by February 7th. Papers should be emailed as an attached PDF to the conference organizers at nundgradconf@gmail.com.
