

OXFORD WORKSHOP on PERSONAL IDENTITY AND ETHICS

St Anne's College, Oxford University

Friday 20 November, 2015

Seminar Room 5: 10am - 5pm

[Directions to Seminar Room 5 can be obtained from the St Anne's Porter's Lodge]

Details:

- Eight speaking sessions (20-25 minute presentations followed by brief Q&As), two 30 minute discussion sessions
 - Lunch provided, but breakfast and refreshments not provided (apologies) - please bring your own coffee/tea/snacks if desired
-

Schedule:

10-10:30	“Personal Identity and Justice” Nils Holtug (University of Copenhagen)
10:40-11:10	“Personal Identity and Aggregation” Tim Campbell (Institute for Futures Studies)
11:20-11:50	“Do Many Things Matter?” Caspar Hare (Massachusetts Institute of Technology)
12-12:30	“The reductionist criterion of personal identity and the Repugnant Conclusion” Simon Beard (London School of Economics)
12:30-1	Discussion
1-2	Lunch (catered buffet style lunch in Seminar Room 9)
2-2:30	“Shortfall Utilitarianism” Robyn Kath (University of Sydney)
2:40-3:10	“How much can we cure someone before we end up ‘killing’ them?” Francesca Minerva (University of Ghent) and Alberto Giubilini (Charles Sturt University)
3:20-3:50	“Personal Identity and the Mere Addition Paradox” Jacob Ross (University of Southern California)
4-4:30	“The self as the prudentially significant unit” Tatjana Višak (Mannheim University and Saarland University)
4:30-5	Discussion

Organizer:

Theron Pummer (St Andrews)

Discussants: Ralf Bader (Oxford), Roger Crisp (Oxford), John Cusbert (Oxford), Hilary Greaves (Oxford), Alison Hills (Oxford), Kacper Kowalczyk (Oxford), Jeff McMahan (Oxford), Andreas Mogensen (Oxford), Toby Ord (Oxford), Teru Thomas (Oxford), Melinda Roberts (The College of New Jersey), Benjamin Curtis (Nottingham), Amanda MacAskill (New York University), Miguel F. Dos Santos (University College London)