

IWSPC 2017

University of Utah Salt Lake City

14th Annual Intermountain West Student Philosophy Conference
Department of Philosophy, University of Utah

February 23-24, 2017

Keynote Co-speakers: Sharyn Clough, Ph.D. and Jonathan Kaplan, Ph.D.
(Oregon State University)

Image courtesy of the University of Utah

The graduate students of the Department of Philosophy at the University of Utah are excited to announce the 14th Annual Intermountain West Student Philosophy Conference. This year we welcome Sharyn Clough and Jonathan Kaplan of Oregon State University as our keynote co-speakers. Sharyn Clough is the director of the Phronesis Lab at Oregon State University and conducts research on the relationship between epistemology and social values in the context of scientific practice. Jonathan Kaplan conducts research on contemporary issues at the intersections of race and biology, including biomedicine.

Call for abstracts and short papers

Please submit your extended abstract or short paper suitable for a 20-minute presentation (about 3,000 words), prepared for blind review, to the IWSPC committee by December 5, 2016. Submissions from all areas are welcome. Students working on contemporary issues at the intersections of ethics, epistemology, and science are strongly encouraged to submit their work.

Email submissions to: n.b.harrison@utah.edu

Deadline: December 5, 2016

Accepted submissions will be announced early January.

IWSPC 2017 Co-organizers: Richard Figueroa, Nick Harrison, and Ryan Nelson

Department of Philosophy

