

The Boston Phenomenology Circle's 2017 symposium:

VARIETIES OF PHENOMENOLOGY

FRIDAY, March 24
Boston University
School of Theology Building
Room 325

1:30-1:40 opening remarks

1:40-3:00 Tim Mooney (University College Dublin), "Getting to intelligible space with Kant and Husserl"

3:10-4:30 David Cerbone (West Virginia), "Phenomenology and/of the Background"

4:40-6:00 Hanne Jacobs (Loyola Chicago), "Attention and the activity of reason"

6:00-8:00 reception

SATURDAY, March 25
Boston College
McGuinn Hall
Room 521

9:30-10:50 Sean Kelly (Harvard), TBA

11:00-12:20 Walter Hopp (Boston University), "Some phenomenological considerations against idealism"

2:30-3:50 Richard Kearney (Boston College), "Phenomenologies of touch: Aristotle and Merleau-Ponty"

4:00-5:20 David Carr (New School/Emory), "Intersubjective embodiment"

The Boston Phenomenology Circle, founded by graduate students at Boston University and Boston College, is a forum and network for phenomenology in the Boston area. All are welcome.

<https://bostonphenomenologycircle.wordpress.com/symposia/17-2/>

Organizers: Zach Joachim zjoachim@bu.edu, Sean Driscoll sean.driscoll@bc.edu

Sponsors: Boston University Department of Philosophy, Boston University Center for the Humanities, Boston College Department of Philosophy