

Third Workshop on Concepts and Perception (III WC&P):
Nature, content and normative status of mental representations

UNC campus, Córdoba, Argentina
November 16-17, 2017

Organized by:

Concepts & Perception

Intentionality

Research groups

The workshop on concepts and perception has set out to be an interdisciplinary event gathering local and international researchers that work on the areas of philosophy of mind and cognitive sciences, psychology, cognitive linguistics and philosophy of language. The workshop inquires into the nature of concepts and perceptual states. In this third edition, we propose to examine in depth, on the one hand, discussions on the nature and relationship of conceptual and non-conceptual contents and the format of their representational vehicles. On the other hand, discussions will also focus on the problem of normativity, the normative status of concepts, and the nature and origin of normativity in conceptual and non-conceptual content involved in the use and possession of concepts, perceptual states and particular linguistic phenomena, such as metaphor.

Keynote speakers:

Hans-Johann Glock (University of Zurich)
Fernando Martínez Manrique (University of Granada)
Glenda Satne (University of Wollongong/Universidad Alberto Hurtado)
Agustín Vicente (University of the Basque Country)
Diana Pérez (Universidad de Buenos Aires/CONICET)

Topic areas:

1) Linguistic and iconic representations. 2) Conceptual and non-conceptual representations. 3) Propositional and non-propositional representations. 4) Representations in perception and cognition: their nature and relations. 5) Mental representations, mechanisms and computational processes. 6) The problem of normativity in mental representations. 7) Representations, normativity and rationality.

Languages: English and Spanish

Contact and information: aguileramarielaphi@gmail.com

Projects:

“Some varieties of mental content”, SECYT-
“Mental content: Nature and Structure” PICT 2015-2572
CIFFYH – UNC