

RATIONAL BELIEF AND NORMATIVE COMMITMENTS

Workshop in Haifa, April 25-27, 2017

Rabin Observatory, Rabin Building 9th Floor, University of Haifa

Organizers: Arnon Keren (University of Haifa), Christian Piller (University of York)

Tuesday, April 25

14:45-15:00 Gathering and Coffee

15:00-15:10 Opening Remarks

15:10-16:15

Daniel Statman (University of Haifa)
Friendship, Epistemic Partiality, and the Legal Duty to Prevent Crime

16:15-16:35 Coffee Break

16:35-17:40

Paul Faulkner (University of Sheffield)
Giving the Benefit of the Doubt

Wednesday, April 26

9:00-9:30 Coffee

9:30-10:35

Sam Lebens (University of Haifa)
Rationality, Reasonableness and Religion

10:40-11:45

Arnon Keren (University of Haifa)
Trust's Meno Problem: Belief, Evidence and the Value of Trust

11:45-12:00 Coffee Break

12:00-13:05

Christian Piller (University of York)
Beware of Safety: What Our Epistemic Concerns Teach Us about Knowledge

13:05-14:35 Lunch

14:35-15:40

Hagit Benbaji (Ben Gurion University)
To Feel or Not to Feel

15:45-16:50

Ariel Meirav (University of Haifa)
Trust and Hope as Affirmations of Goodness

16:50-17:05 Coffee Break

17:05-18:10

Ittay Nissan-Rozen (Hebrew University of Jerusalem)
A Pragmatic Argument against Equal Weighting

Thursday, April 27

9:00-9:30 Coffee

9:30-10:35

Sophie Archer (Oxford University)
Why 'Believes' is Not a Vague Predicate

10:40-11:45

Levi Spectre (Open University of Israel)
Statistical Belief

11:45-12:00 Coffee Break

12:00-13:05

Yair Levy (Tel Aviv University)
There are No Permissive (Epistemic) Rules

13:05-14:35 Lunch

Generously Supported by: The Academic Study Group on Israel and the Middle East; University of Haifa; Faculty of Humanities; Department of Philosophy; Psyphas Program in Psychology and Philosophy

