

HISTORIOGRAPHY

METHODOLOGY

METAPHILOSOPHY

Summer School

30 June-7 July 2018

Faculty:

Margaret Cameron, University of Victoria

Christopher Green, York University

Martin Kusch, University of Vienna

Sandra Lapointe, McMaster University

Chris Meyns, University of Utrecht

Claude Panaccio, Université du Québec à Montréal

Erich Reck, University of California,
Riverside

Aviezer Tucker, Harvard University

Among the topics explored: historical methodology in philosophy ♦ reconstruction, narrative: history as a form of explanation ♦ epistemic goals, values, and norms in history of philosophy ♦ the relationship between history of philosophy and the history of other disciplines (e.g. mathematics, psychology) ♦ the sociology of philosophy and the history of philosophy, ♦ the relationship between cognitive biases and hermeneutic limitations, ♦ canon-formation, ♦ the nature and role of 'counter-narratives', e.g. debunking histories or revisionary tales ♦ the rediscovery of non-canonical figures.

Admission requirements

Being registered in a post-graduate program in philosophy, history, history of science or connected disciplines. In exceptional cases, advanced undergraduate students will be eligible to apply. Those holding a graduate or post-graduate degree in philosophy or connected discipline or who are working as a post-doctoral researcher or faculty in an institution of post-secondary education are also welcome to apply.

The summer institute is co-organized by Sandra Lapointe and Erich Reck. It is hosted in the Department of Philosophy at McMaster University in Hamilton Canada. McMaster is home to the Bertrand Russell Archives and a guided visit of the Archives will be included on the program.

Application Deadline: 5 Feb 2018

Anyone interested in applying or who would like more details should contact Sean Dudley (dudles1@mcmaster.ca) directly.

<http://historyofanalyticalphilosophy.mcmaster.ca/summer-school->