

Ancient Philosophy Workshop for Female Graduate Students and Early Career Researchers

Friday 11th January 2019 · Somerville College, University of Oxford
Margaret Thatcher Theatre

- 10:00–10:30 Coffee
- 10.30–11.45 SIMONA AIMAR (University College London)
‘Technē as a Science for Aristotle’
Chair: Lea Cantor (University of Oxford)
- 11.45–12:00 Coffee
- 12:00–13:15 KATHARINE O’REILLY (University of Oxford)
‘Cicero Reading the Cyrenaics on the Anticipation of Future Pain’
Chair: Chiara Martini (University of Oxford)
- 13:15–14:15 Lunch
- 14:15–15:30 MARGARET HAMPSON (University College London)
‘The Learner’s Motivation in Aristotelian Habituation’
Chair: Maya Krishnan (University of Oxford)
- 15:30–16:45 SYBILLA PEREIRA (University of Oxford)
‘All Flowers in Time Bend Towards the Sun’:
Epistemic Agency and Truth in Plato’s Gorgias’
Chair: Saloni de Souza (University of Oxford)
- 16:45–17:15 Coffee
- 17:15–18:30 ELLISIF WASMUTH (University of Essex)
‘What the many know and teach: language/games in the First Alcibiades’
Chair: Alesia Preite (University of Oxford)
- 19:00 Conference Dinner

Organiser: Ana Laura Edelhoff

We gratefully acknowledge the support of the Faculty of Philosophy and Somerville College, Oxford.
The workshop is open to all. There are no registration fees, but if you would like to attend please send a message to analaura.edelhoff@some.ox.ac.uk before January 10th.