

The Objectivity of Moral Judgement

Workshop, 24–25 January 2019, University of Klagenfurt

This workshop is part of an interdisciplinary cooperation project entitled THE EXERCISE OF JUDGMENT IN THE EARLY MODERN PERIOD, boosted by HRSM funding from the Austrian Federal Ministry of Science, Research and Economy (see www.aau.at/judgment). Additional funding comes from the Österreichische HochschülerInnenschaft (ÖH) and the Institute of Philosophy, Klagenfurt.

Program

Thursday 24 Jan, 17:00–18:45, Room N 1.71

Jens Timmermann (St. Andrews), “Morality as a System of Hypothetical Imperatives? Or: The Will in Motion”

Friday 24 Jan, 9:30–11:00, Room N 1.71

Giuseppe Motta (Graz), “The Objectivity of Theoretic, Aesthetic, and Moral Judgements: Three Models of Modality”

11:10–12:40

Bernhard Ritter (Klagenfurt), “Why (and in What Sense) There Are No Moral Hypotheses”

14:30–16:00

Maja Schepelmann (Berlin), “About Knowledge, Laws and Judging Authorities: Sketching out the Logical and Moral Functionality of Purposiveness”

16:10–17:40

Geertje Bol (St. Andrews), “What Kind of Lie? Kant and von Herbert on Lies, Deception, and Reticence”