

NordPhil

A Nordic Philosophy Student Conference
19-20 September 2019, Lund, Sweden

The third edition of NordPhil hereby invites applicants to submit a paper on any area of philosophy to be presented in Lund, 19-20 September 2019.

We are pleased to announce the keynote-speaker of 2019:
Prof. Kasper Lippert-Rasmussen, Aarhus University.

NordPhil aims to invigorate Nordic academic philosophy by the roots, providing an arena for aspiring Nordic philosophy students to develop their professional skills and test their ideas in an encouraging critical environment. By providing a stepping stone, the conference intends to foster a greater exchange of ideas and furthered competence in the Nordic region, with the long term goal of promoting the international standing of nordic philosophy.

Application Information:

We accept papers of max. 4000 words (excluding bibliography).

Applicants must be affiliated to a Nordic university. Students at B.A.- or M.A.-level are given priority.

The preferred language is English, but Norwegian, Danish and Swedish are allowed—with the requirement of adequate understanding at presentation.

Papers must be prepared for blind review—i.e. contain no information disclosing the identity or affiliation of the applicant.

A seperate cover sheet should be included in the application, stating Paper Title, Name of Applicant, Affiliation, Level of Study and Contact Details.

For application: send paper and cover sheet (in PDF format) to nordphil.lund@gmail.com.

Any enquiries are directed to the e-mail adress or www.nordphil.com.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: 15th of June, 2019.
