WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION:

This workshop offers early career researchers in philosophy of mind and cognitive science an opportunity for in-depth discussion and feedback on their work. Each accepted speaker will be paired with an early career researcher from the RUB working on a connected topic. The paired speakers will receive each other's papers in advance, and prepare a detailed commentary. Each paper will then get 60 minutes for the presentation, 10 min for the paired commentary, and 20 min for discussion.

CALL FOR PAPERS:

Abstracts ready for blind review (1000 words) with a separate cover sheet (listing name, contact information, institutional affiliation, and date of PhD conferral or expected conferral) should be submitted to bochumgradconf@gmail.com by April 1st, 2020. Notifications of acceptance will be sent by April 17th. Accepted speakers will be asked to send their full papers (of no more than 10,000 words) by beginning of June. For additional queries please contact alfredo-vernazzani@daad-alumni.de.
