

Call for Reviewers

Conatus · Journal of Philosophy is an international open-access peer reviewed philosophical journal (both print and electronic) published by the NKUA Applied Philosophy Research Laboratory. Conatus is dedicated to the dissemination of original philosophical research. To this purpose the journal invites original unpublished papers within any field of Philosophy or application of philosophical method to any area of intellectual and practical life.

Conatus · Journal of Philosophy relies on a double peer review system, so as to ensure the quality and academic integrity of the published material. To that purpose all manuscripts are channeled to independent (that is, not affiliated with the same institute as the author) expert reviewers.

The Journal invites professionals, experts and scholars to register with it as reviewers, and thus become members of a growing, active international community on the one hand, and enjoy the fruits of partnering with a high impact philosophical journal on the other.

Potential reviewers should either hold a PhD title, or be members of the teaching staff in any accredited academic institution.

All reviewers will be included in the Journal's Board of Reviewers; they will also receive on an annual basis an official Reviewer's Certificate mentioning the number of reviews completed for the Journal. Reviewers that are registered with Web of Science's Publons will be able to track, verify, and showcase their peer review and editorial contributions for Conatus.

Conatus · Journal of Philosophy is currently indexed with all major indexing, abstracting and content coverage services and databases including Elsevier's SCOPUS, ERIHPLUS, Index Copernicus, Zenodo, DRJI, and others.
