

Middle Voices: Call for Papers

Levinas Special Issue

Middle Voices is a journal of scholarly research published by the Department of Psychology at Duquesne University. As part of Duquesne's longstanding tradition in human science psychology, the journal is concerned with cross-disciplinary intersections that inform our understanding of self and world. We are seeking original submissions for a special issue on Emmanuel Levinas, to be released in the Fall of 2021. We invite submissions that turn toward the philosophy of Levinas for a philosophical basis in thinking through a broad range of issues within Psychology.

Suggested topics for articles include (but are not limited to):

- +Levinasian implications for the study of psychopathology
- +Levinasian ethics in the psy- disciplines & psychotherapy
- +The phenomenology of ethics in world and social contexts
- +The paradoxes of power and weakness in the intersubjective & interpersonal

Submission Requirements:

- +Max. 7,500 words, double-spaced pages
- + APA formatting

Manuscripts should be submitted via the journal website:

https://dsc.duq.edu/middle\_voices/

Inquiries may be submitted to:

middlevoices@duq.edu

Submissions for this special issue are due by June 21st 2021.